

Postnominal Modifiers (PostM)

Postnominal modifiers may be expressed by:

1. Prepositional phrases are the most common postnominal modifiers.

e.g. the boy in the room

There may be more than one PP following the headword.

a. They may postmodify the same headword:

Prepositional phrases ‘in jeans’ and ‘with glasses’ posmodify the headword ‘boy’.

b.They may postmodify different headwords.

e.g. the house at the end of the road

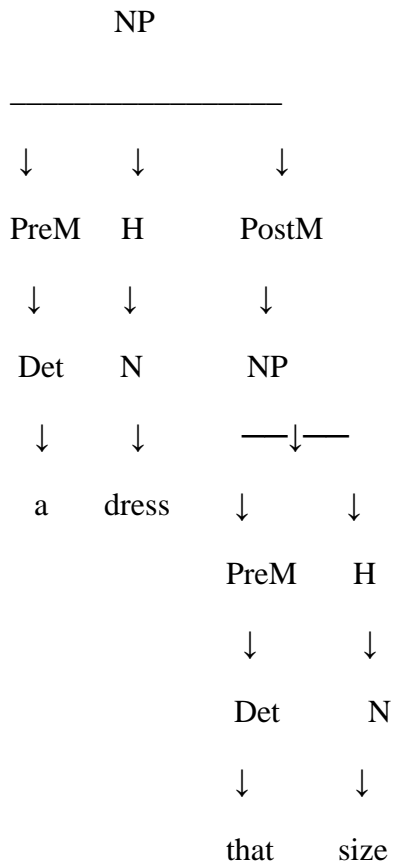

The first prepositional phrase ‘at the end’ postmodifies the headword ‘house’ whereas the second one ‘of the road’ postmodifies the headword ‘end’.

2. Noun phrases can also be postnominal modifiers.

e.g. a dress that size

3. Adjective phrases sometimes may have the function of postnominal modifiers.

e.g. the sum total

NP

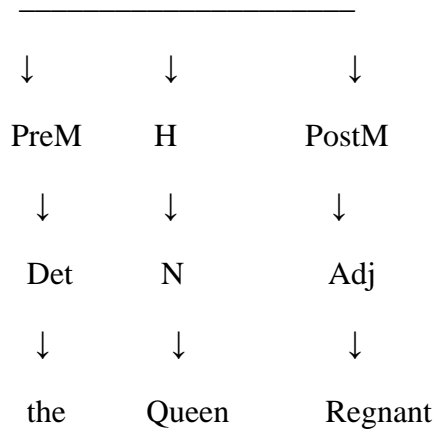

AdjP-s in the function of postnominal modifiers can be grouped into the following:

a. Adjectives of foreign origin

e.g. the Queen Regnant

NP

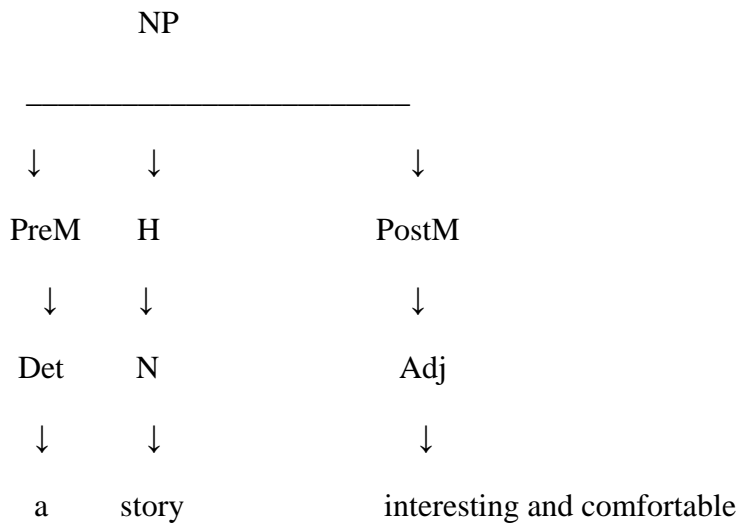

b. Some grammatical expressions use adjectives in the function of postnominal modifiers e.g. the first person plural

c. Two or more adjectives joined together can be used in the function of postmodifiers in an NP

e.g. a story interesting and comfortable

4. Adverbial phrases are also used in the function of postnominal modifiers. They are usually adverbs of place or time.

e.g. the children outside

Sometimes an adverb used as postnominal modifier may be premodified itself.

e.g. the river over there

↓ ↓
over there

5. Cardinal Numbers may be used in the function of postnominal modifiers

e.g. page ten

6. Apposition can be a postmodifier in an NP. It gives the headword another name or identity.

Apposition is divided into:

a. Close apposition which is closely connected to the headword and modifies it e.g. Architect John

Architect John

b. Loose apposition is separated by commas in writing

e.g. his brother, a well known lawyer,

7. Non-finite clauses may have the function of postmodifiers in NP-s.

Non-finite clauses are divided into:

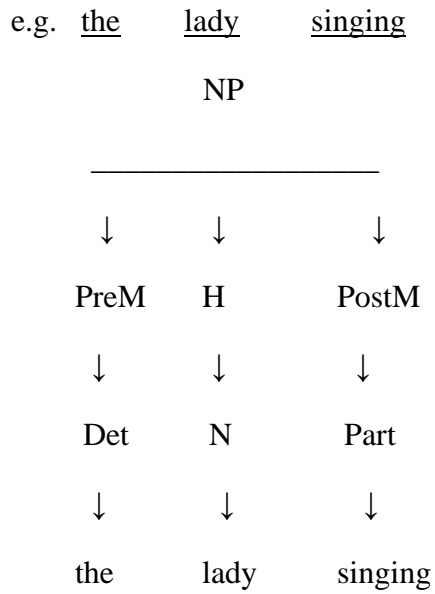

a. Infinitives

e.g. the best man to advise

b. Present Participle

c.Past Participle

e.g. the problem involved

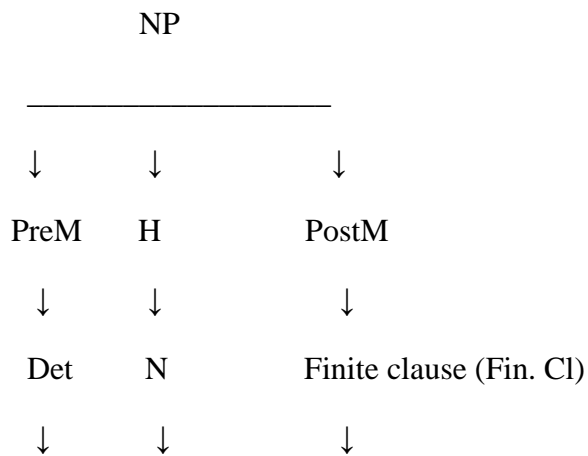

8.Finite Clauses can have the function of postnominal modifiers.

They begin with wh = who, which, where, when, what, why, how, that ('that' doesn't consist wh letters but it is still in the group of Finite clauses)

They are divided into:

a.Restrictive clauses – postmodify the noun headword by identifying it through that clause

e.g. the wall which is on the left side

the wall which is on the left side

b. Non-restrictive clauses – do not modify the noun headword, they only add new information to it.

e.g. my mother, who is a teacher,

NP

